Jamie R. Wilson is a dedicated litigator committed to achieving proven, cost-effective results tailored to the needs of his clients.

Jamie's practice focuses on complex commercial litigation involving employment and contractual disputes and other matters involving businesses. He has extensive experience handling cases involving trade secrets as well as non-competition agreements, non-solicitation agreements, and other restrictive covenants.

Jamie works closely with his clients to understand their business needs and develop a strategy that will result in the most favorable outcome. He prides himself on his ability to identify practical solutions to complex issues that add value to his clients' cases.

Over his career, Jamie has represented Fortune 500 companies and individuals in a wide range of litigation. He has worked extensively with companies in the technology industry and has handled cases in state court, federal court, as well as matters in arbitration. Jamie has also handled cases involving fraud and has experience representing whistleblowers in Qui Tam actions involving violations of the False Claims Act.

Jamie enjoys spending time with his wife, Mayelli, and two dogs, running, traveling, watching sports, and going to concerts. He is also a 1st Degree Black Belt in Tae Kwon Do.
