

Products Liability

Products liability is a complicated area of law that governs who, when and how someone who has been harmed by a product can receive compensation. KRCL understands that you are only as successful as your relationship with consumers. KRCL strategically works to protect the integrity of our clients' products and reputations through aggressive defense against product liability claims.

Our products liability attorneys represent manufacturers throughout the world in products liability disputes and other litigation and legal matters, often representing manufacturers directly through large self-insured retentions.

Our lawyers have extensive experience in not only the technical issues involved with products liability claims, but also the most effective and efficient manner to present those complex technical matters to a jury made up of ordinary people.

Having represented manufacturers in hundreds of products liability cases, KRCL is uniquely qualified to successfully handle the most complex, challenging and significant matters. We also use our expertise to identify opportunities in the early stages of litigation and we strive to offer alternatives consistent with our clients' interests.

KRCL's product liability lawyers also work closely with other sections of the firm to provide legal resources and support for our other legal matters. We join forces with KRCL's IP lawyers to provide advice on trade secrets and patent issues and to prosecute and defend IP and trade secrets claims for our manufacturing clients in recouping damages caused by other companies. KRCL's Real Estate section provides advice on real estate and leasing transactions. Our China Practice group assists with the increasing demands and challenges faced by our Chinese clients entering the US market and our American clients doing business in or with China. KRCL's Product Liability Practice Group has a long-standing reputation for aggressively and efficiently defending cases in Texas and throughout the nation.
